MONTREAL

The spirit of the 1976 Olympic Games still reigns in Montréal thanks to world-class facilities like the Complexe Sportif Claude-Robillard, which was built for this historic event. Comprised of two buildings, the Aréna Michel-Normandin and the Complexe, this storied venue continues to host national and international competitions and act as a major hub for sports events of different levels to this day.

The Complexe Sportif Claude-Robillard is home to five high-level training groups and hosts some 20 sports associations, including several elite clubs. It boasts many indoor and outdoor facilities, including slow pitch baseball diamonds, indoor and outdoor running tracks, tennis courts, soccer and football fields and much more. Not only is the Complexe Sportif Claude-Robillard a top-notch venue, but it is a central hub for sports development in Montréal and Québec.
