The IGA Stadium is a multifunctional public tennis facility that serves as a national centre for training, development, competition and coach and official certification.

In 1981, Montréal held its very first international tennis tournament. For Tennis Canada, the stadium at Jarry Park was an obvious choice.

The 11,700-seat IGA Stadium hosts numerous and special events annually. In 2001, Tennis Canada added 1,250 seats to the Centre Court. Three years later, it built the National Bank Court, with seating for 4,500 people and four additional indoor courts.
